

I believe the FCC should remove the morse code requirment for amateur radio licenses. Morse code is only one mode of many the amateur radio operators may use. Many hams do not operate morse code at all in the hf bands. Why limit HF privelges to those that can pass the morse code test (that may be the last time they ever use it) Many countries hae eliminated all morse code requirements for there Hams and I believe the FCC should eleminate this requirement for US hams.
